

Dear Sir dear Madame,

In regards of responsible camping (freedom camping) in New Zealand running a rental company with more than 250 vehicles I think it would be good to have an organisation formed by the industry which regulates. To keep New Zealand clean and green a lot of things are set in place but never where on a big scale followed up.

- Rental companies should be monitored about their behaviour in regards of introduction and follow up of toilet and waste and waste water behaviour
- Non complying customers or other freedom campers should get an instant fine which has to be paid on the spot (99% of all tourists or freedom campers have credit cards)
- There should not be a difference between plumbed in toilets and porta potties because both are working in the same way

The government CAA has given other organisations (RAANZ / SAC ) the right to manage certain groups of people involved in flying, why can not be there a Organisation established by the industry to set and monitor rules about responsible freedom camping in NZ
