Our company make components for the aerospace industry. This is a substantial part of our business and has allowed us to grow our business and increase our revenue. We have added two additional staff members (including an apprentice), purchased a new CNC machine worth $600k, upgraded two other machines at $250k each in our factory and are considering expanding within the next 12-18 months. Ongoing work in the industry will allow us to add an additional machine ($500K plus) and another staff member over the next 12-18 months. Our staff enjoy the highly technical work provided by the aerospace industry, and this creates a sense of pride when they complete increasingly technical components.
