To whom it may concern,

We don't need tighter regulations what we have is fine what we need is is more toilets and facilities such as water and waste management in camping spots for campers to dispose of their waste along with education around keeping tidy, this all seems more like a gentrification of something inherently part of our country, to go camping easily and freely. It will only benefit those with more money and camper business's and shut out vans owned by regular kiwis

Kind regards

Marijn
