Electricity Price Review – Stakeholder Update

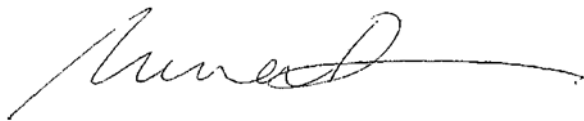

Dear All,

I write to advise that today we gave the Minister of Energy and Resources, the Hon Dr Megan Woods, the Electricity Price Review's final report. The timing of its public release is for the Government to decide.

The 68-page report follows a very similar format to that used in our first report and options paper. We have endeavoured to make it reasonably self-contained by avoiding constant reference to these earlier documents. We made 32 recommendations, categorizing them as short-term (within three months), medium-term (within 12 months) and longer-term (within 18 months).

I take this opportunity to thank all those who took the time and effort to participate in our review. We sought feedback from as many stakeholders as practicably possible, in settings large and small, formal and informal. We also received a great number of constructive and well-considered submissions. It has been a genuine privilege to head this review, which is now at an end.

Yours sincerely

Miriam R Dean CNZM QC
